national volunteer week

"This amazing group of people offer up their time to rescue animals when they are in need. They spend hours every week training to be ready for deployment at any moment. They may be deployed onto swift water, head down a cliff or into a dark hole to retrieve animals of all shapes and sizes. There is a lot of safety training to prepare them, however, this job still remains dangerous when dealing with stressed animals in dangerous situations. Not to mention they have a great attitude and work well with other organisations when there are major disasters. I think this group deserve recognition for the effort they put into volunteering their time, heading into difficult situations and all the preparation that goes into being able to help out animals in need."
