national volunteer week

"Maggie Peace has been part of The Prouse Bush Working Group for many years, her hard working voluntary work (which she also is spearheaded by Forest & Bird Horowhenua which she is a part of), this includes organization of the Prouse Bush working bee which get together twice a month at Prouse Bush. the aim of this group is to remove non native pest seedlings, household rubbish that keeps being disposed of in the reserve and making this site a predator-free haven for the rare powellaphanta snail too allow it to thrive in a natural area. With the work her and Geoff of Forest & Bird Horowhenua are undertaking it creates a massive opportunities to provide education to the public through her work and raising the consciousness among the public about the importance of biodiversity within Prouse Bush."
